

Pack 03

Legal & admin.

Not about winning. About knowing where things stand.

In this pack

- | | | |
|----|------------------------|---------|
| 08 | Admin checklist | 5 pages |
| 09 | Lawyer & mediator prep | 3 pages |
| 10 | Accounts tracker | 1 page |
| 11 | Household admin map | 1 page |
| 12 | Separation timeline | 1 page |

Weekly reset → Tool 13, in Pack 04.

Where it lives in the app

Admin holds documents, accounts and appointment prep.

Records keeps the dated log and shared costs.

Money has the child support estimator.

Practical organisation only. Not legal advice.

Know where the paper lives.

The separation admin load in five lists, grouped by where they live in your life. You don't need to finish any of them this week. Tick what's already done, cross out what doesn't apply. First, the paper: lawyers, the ATO, banks, schools and insurers will ask for these again and again.

First month? Start with Tool 01.

- ☐ Life insurance beneficiary details

If you only do one thing

Take a phone photo of every document you find and drop them into a single private folder. Searchable beats neat.

Untangle the shared accounts.

Most of this list is one or two phone calls. Boring on the day, worth thousands by year two. Review and document first. Get advice before closing or changing shared facilities.

02 Bank, super & insurance

What official record is most likely to still have old information attached to it?

Make the home systems visible.

Home admin is part legal, part practical, part “where did that bill go?” This list separates the house, the utilities and the shared things that can quietly become expensive.

What's the one repeated kid-admin task that needs a clearer system?

Calmer questions, clearer answers.

Preparation for any meeting that costs by the hour: a first legal appointment, mediation, a property or parenting plan discussion. Tick the questions that match where you are, add your own, cross out the rest. Write the answers on page 03.

01 Questions to ask first

These change your next step most

- | | |
|---|--|
| ☐ 01 How do you charge, and what usually costs the most? | ☐ Do we need to try Family Dispute Resolution first, and where would we go? |
| ☐ Are there time limits I need to know about? | ☐ Am I eligible for Legal Aid or low-cost help? |
| ☐ What should I do if there are safety concerns? | ☐ What should I be keeping a record of, and how? |

02 Parenting

- ☐ 01 What arrangements tend to work for kids the ages of ours?
- ☐ 02 What factors matter most legally regarding the children?
- ☐ 03 How are school schedules usually handled?
- ☐ 04 What documentation is useful to keep?
- ☐ 05 What should we avoid doing right now?
- ☐ 06 How is communication usually managed between separated parents?
- ☐ 07 What does a workable interim arrangement look like before anything is final?
- ☐ 08 How should we handle holidays, birthdays, school events and changeovers?
- ☐ 09 What should I do if we disagree about a child-related decision?

03 Financial & property

- ☐ 01 What financial information will likely be needed?
- ☐ 02 How are shared assets usually assessed?
- ☐ 03 What happens with superannuation?
- ☐ 04 What are the likely next steps from here?
- ☐ 05 What timelines are realistic?
- ☐ 06 What costs should I prepare for?
- ☐ 07 What financial mistakes should I avoid right now?
- ☐ 08 What should I avoid changing, selling, closing or transferring before getting advice?
- ☐ 09 How should shared expenses be handled while things are unresolved?
- ☐ 10 What are the main options if one of us wants to keep the home?

Walk in knowing what you want.

Mediation goes better when you've thought about outcomes before you're in the room.

The last section is just for you.

04 Mediation preparation

Before the session

☐ 01 What should I prepare before mediation?

☐ 02 What outcomes are realistic for us?

☐ 03 What documents should I bring?

☐ 04 What usually slows agreements down?

☐ 05 What helps conversations stay productive?

05 Personal clarity

For you, not the meeting

Write the version that's true for you, not the version that sounds reasonable.

What outcome matters most right now?

What feels most uncertain?

What would help me feel calmer after this appointment?

Write it down before you leave.

You're paying for the answers. Bring the file, then write down what they said while it's still clear. Print one of these per meeting.

Security

The app keeps your data on this device. Paper doesn't. Keep these sheets somewhere private, and don't leave printed copies in shared spaces. Use a password manager for the passwords themselves. This page is the map, not the vault.

Make the invisible work visible.

Households run on quiet, repeating jobs that one person usually owns. List them, see where they land now, and tick the ones that need a plan.

Which household systems need rebuilding first?

Dates blur under stress.

Write them down while you remember them. This isn't a legal statement. It's a private one-page summary you can come back to when something matters.

In the app: Records → keep the running log there. This page is the one-page summary.

Why your separation date matters.

In Australia you can apply for divorce once you've been separated for 12 months. Property claims have time limits: 12 months after a divorce is final, or 2 years after a de facto relationship ends. Check your dates with a lawyer.

Paper can't fix a separation. It can stop it surprising you.

Most admin stress is not knowing: where the document is, which account is still joint, when the date was. Now you know where to look.
